Otago Boys' fights back but has too much to do

ADRIAN SECONI

DEFENCE really does win you championships.

Nelson College spent most of the final 10 minutes camped on its line, desperately holding on as Otago Boys' High School staged a comeback in the South Island First XV final at Forsyth Barr Stadium on Saturday.

Lionhearted No 8 Semisi Tupou Ta'eiloa crashed into the defence countless times and was held up over the line at least twice during the game.

First five Finn Hurley had led the fightback when he skipped across following a quick tap, and he set up winger Aaron Morrison with a wonderful counter-attack and even better offload.

But the home side had left itself with too much to do.

Halftime: Nelson College 13-0.

Nelson held on to claim a 27-19 win.

The visiting side had the better of the first half.

It struck early, and it was an awfully impressive opening.

Nelson held on the ball for phase after phase until lock Hunter Leppien got a lovely short pass off to prop Ben Lefale, who charged to the line from 20m out.

First five Cooper Grant, son of former Black Sox pitcher Marty Grant, added the conversion and a couple of penalties to give his side a 13-0 lead at the break.

Livewire halfback Will Thornalley had made several dangerous runs. His pace was causing Otago Boys' endless headaches.

Late in the half, the home side was a little unlucky not to be awarded a penalty try.

Otago Boys' was steamrolling towards the line but Nelson sacked the maul. Lock Tuterangi Stone-Williams got a yellow card for his sins but stopped the try.

Otago Boys' tried the maul again early in the second spell and marched 40m. Ta'eiloa peeled off and threw himself at the line but was stopped.

However, hooker Alex McLaughlan got across from another drive a few minutes later to get his side on the board.

All that hard work came undone at the other end.

Nelson strung some phases together and kept probing until fullback Nic Saulra slipped over.

Nelson stretched out to a 27-7 lead when Netani Baleisomo reached over to score following a long build-up.

The game looked lost for Otago Boys' but some magic from Hurley set up a tense finish.

He will be ruing a couple of uncharacteristic clunked attempts at goal but he had a fine match.

Relegation for Spirit after defeat

ADRIAN SECONI

THE Otago Spirit will drop down to the Championship following a comprehensive 72-24 loss to Canterbury in its final game of the season.

The defending champion was too slick for the home team at Forsyth Barr Stadium on Saturday.

scoring 11 tries to three in a polished display.

Former Spirit player

Rosie Kelly and exciting

openside flanker Jorja Miller

bagged two first-half tries apiece.

Miller's second came out on the right wing. She stepped her way past three players to get to the chalk, whereas Kelly used her pace from fullback to nab her brace.

Canterbury first five

Terauriwa Gapper had a terrific opening half. She took the ball to the line and created a lot of problems for Otago's defence.

The Spirit's lineout was not functioning very well but the home side had a nice patch either side of the half. Lock Julia

Gorinski barged over from close range after a nice build-up and

No 8 Greer Muir collected a double.

Maia Joseph had another strong game, this time at first five rather than her usual spot at halfback.

Canterbury lost prop and captain Steph Te Ohaere-Fox to the sin bin for 10 minutes in the second spell, but regained its momentum quickly.

Martha Mataele palmed off three tackles in a 30m run to bring up the half-century for Canterbury and there was a late out.

In the other Premiership game,

Wellington beat Bay of Plenty

41-34 at Mount Maunganui to final against Waikato.

Canterbury is straight through to the Farah Palmer Cup final.

In the Championship, Hawke's

Foster pleased with team's gutsy victory

LIAM NAPIER

AUCKLAND: More valuable than securing the Rugby Championship title or winning the historic 100th test against the Springboks is the steep learning curve the All Blacks absorbed after surviving a relentless, smothering onslaught in Townsville.

Prior to their tense 19-17 victory on Saturday night, the All Blacks had not played the Springboks for two years, since their 2019 World Cup pool match. And it showed.

All the planning and analysis can only go so far in preparing a team to face the Boks.

Despite knowing exactly the style they would confront, the All Blacks struggled for large parts to counter South Africa's kick-heavy, defence-oriented, slow, set piece-focused tactics.

On the whole, Foster was pleased to escape with victory, thanks to Jordie Barrett's clutch 77th-minute strike, but he admitted many of his team would take several lessons away from a match the Springboks succeeded in reducing to a dogfight.

The All Blacks planned negating the Boks' defensive line speed pressure by being direct with their carries and dominating the cleanout. As they discovered, though, it is one thing to make a plan, another to execute it.

"You can talk about pressure and about being strangled," Foster said.

"We spoke a lot about the way the South Africans would play against us. It's one thing to dismiss it as boring, which a lot of people do, but I used the words ruthless and clinical and they're very good at it.

"We ran out of time in many situations and that put our skill set under pressure so it's a real learning curve for us in that space, particularly some of our backs. I felt our timing was a bit off because of the pressure we were put under.

"Isn't it good to learn that lesson and have a win next to your name? We're really excited by not folding. We didn't get too flustered, we kept playing. I'm overall happy and can't wait for next week now."

Foster acknowledged the All Blacks' handling — they conceded 23 turnovers — in the face of the Boks' line speed pressure was not up to standard.

Their lineout also lost four throws, some of those within striking distance of the Boks' line. The rolling maul struggled to penetrate the green wall, and the back three endured a difficult night under a barrage of Faf de Klerk box kicks.

"The performance wasn't really what we wanted but we were forced in a lot of areas by their pressure. That was a game we expected to come up against," Foster said.

"I loved our attitude even when things weren't going well. We wanted to play. We showed a determination to keep fighting and got there in the end.

"We made more errors than what we wanted to. Some of our handling wasn't at the level it needed to be. There's a combination of players playing South Africa for the first time; the pressure they put us under and you have to execute at the top level.

"It's a nice little message for us. Our wings had a real examination. Some things went their way but a few things didn't."

Foster praised his side's composure to steal victory at the death, rookie second five Quinn Tupaea coming off the bench to win a breakdown penalty, and Barrett stepping up to nail the 43m strike.

"It's really significant for us. We knew it was a big game. We've had a bit of an edge over them recently but you saw how fine the margins are.

"Hats off to Jordie — that was a tough kick. Our bench came on really well. Quinn did outstandingly well to win that turnover.

"Jordie will be the guy who won the 100th so good on him."

Given the absences of Sam Whitelock, Dane Coles, Aaron Smith, Sam Cane and Richie Mo'unga, Foster was satisfied to lock away the Rugby Championship and honour the passing of All Blacks great Waka Nathan. — The New Zealand Herald

Cameron honoured to be confirmed as Tall Blacks coach

STAFF REPORTER

Pero Cameron

PERO Cameron has been reappointed head coach of the Tall Blacks for the new Fiba World Cup and Olympic cycle.

Cameron has been in the interim head coach position since 2019, when Paul Henare resigned, and has been contracted to the role fulltime through to September 2024. The appointment will mean the Tall Blacks great will return to New Zealand after 14 years living on the Gold Coast.

"It's an honour to be named head coach of the team that means more to me than any other," Cameron said.

"I have dedicated my adult life to the black jersey, and I am immensely proud to be taking the next step in my Tall Blacks journey.

"It's also exciting to be coming back home to New Zealand on a more permanent basis. Basketball in New Zealand has developed significantly over the last five years and the depth of talent has built year on year.

"I'm absolutely committed to this team and the job I've been entrusted with."

With the 2023 World Cup and the 2024 Olympic Games in Paris

the ultimate goals, Cameron is under no illusions about the task ahead.

"The world is in a challenging space right now, and we will do our best to navigate the path as best we can."

Basketball New Zealand head of high performance Leonard King said nobody knew the Tall Blacks better than Cameron.

"Pero has been an anchor for the Tall Blacks programme for well over two decades," King said.

"He embodies the tu kaha culture and truly understands what it means to represent New Zealand."

"He has made a successful transition from a long, storied, and highly successful playing career to an international coaching career, where he has displayed an incredible aptitude for identifying players' and coaches' strengths and placing them in positions where they can be successful."

Cameron played for the Tall Blacks a record 227 times from 1993 to 2010, captaining the team in 170 games, and became the first New Zealander to be inducted into the Fiba Hall of Fame in 2017.

After retiring from playing, he served as Tall Blacks assistant coach from 2011 to 2019.

Reality check for Chelsea as dominant Man City ends poor run

On the board... Manchester City forward Gabriel Jesus celebrates after scoring in his side's 1-0 win over Chelsea in their English Premier League clash in London yesterday. PHOTO: REUTERS

LONDON: Chelsea tasted defeat for the first time this season as Pep Guardiola's Manchester City earned a statement 1-0 win at Stamford Bridge yesterday on a day Manchester United was beaten by Aston Villa and Liverpool was held by Brentford.

City ended a poor run against Thomas Tuchel's Chelsea thanks to a Gabriel Jesus goal early in the second half.

In the other early game, Manchester United slumped to a first English Premier League defeat of the season as it lost 1-0 to Villa with Bruno Fernandes missing a last-gasp penalty.

That paved the way for Liverpool to go top later, although Jurgen Klopp's side had to be settle for a point as Brentford secured a 3-3 draw in a thriller.

Liverpool has 14 points from six games with City, Chelsea, United and Everton all on 13 points.

Brighton & Hove Albion could go top with 15 points if it beats Crystal Palace tomorrow.

Tuchel had enjoyed mastery over Man City counterpart Guardiola, winning all three matches against him since arriving at Stamford Bridge in January — a sequence culminating in the Champions League final victory.

But this time Guardiola won the tactical battle as his side dominated possession and barely gave Chelsea, which was joint top before the lunchtime kick-off, a sniff.

Pep Guardiola

Jesus' low shot on the turn in the 53rd minute earned City the win and, but for Chelsea goalkeeper Edouard Mendy, it would have enjoyed a bigger margin.

Victory made Guardiola City's most successful manager in terms of wins with 221 since taking charge in 2016.

"I am so proud," Guardiola said. "What we have done in these five years — players, backroom staff and all at the club — working together to improve the club. It's an honour."

"Hopefully we can make more [wins] and the next manager can come and break the record. It means we have won many games. It's why we have won a lot of titles."

It was a reality check for Chelsea whose cautious approach backfired completely.

Villa went ahead in the 88th minute at Old Trafford thanks to a header by Kortney Hause but his hand ball then gave United a penalty in a frantic finish.

Fernandes stepped up but blazed over, manager Ole Gunnar Solskjaer upset with the antics of Villa's players.

"Bruno has been such a good penalty taker," Solskjaer said. "You would back him with your mortgage. What I did not like to see was the way they crowded the penalty spot and the referee to try to affect Bruno."

Mohamed Salah scored his 100th Premier League goal for Liverpool but it was not enough to earn his side victory.

Ethan Pinnock put Brentford ahead but Diogo Jota levelled and Salah struck in the 54th minute.

Vitaly Janelt headed in a rebound to make it 2-2 and, although Curtis Jones put Liverpool back in front in the 67th minute, Brentford snatched a point as substitute Yoane Wissa struck in the 82nd.

West Ham United, which beat Manchester United in the League Cup in midweek, followed up with a 2-1 victory against Leeds United thanks to a late goal by Michail Antonio at Elland Road.

Norwich City's horrendous start to the season continued as it made its six defeats from six games with a 2-0 loss at Everton.

Jamie Vardy scored twice for Leicester City and once for Burnley in a 2-2 draw, although Burnley had a late "winner" cancelled out by a VAR check.

Watford also had a late goal disallowed by VAR a sit came back to draw 1-1 at home to Newcastle United which is still without a league win. — Reuters

Error-ridden Old Golds fall short

HAYDEN MEIKLE

THIS has to be a "flush the dunny" game, to quote former All Blacks coach Steve Hansen.

North Otago will certainly hope to play much better over the next six weeks than it did on Saturday.

If it does not, there is absolutely no question the Meads Cup will not be staying in Oamaru.

The Old Golds produced a bit of a stinker in Levin, falling 25-17 to a Horowhenua-Kapiti side that was decent but hardly fearsome.

It was almost a case of the visiting side losing the game, not the 'Nua' winning it.

North Otago did some things well. The scrum was dominant, and there were glimpses of what appears to be some real attacking potential in both the forwards and the backs.

Rising halfback Jake Matthews produced another promising all-round effort, hulking prop Kelepi Funaki had arguably his best game in the gold jersey, and fullback Levi Emery was eager for action.

Heartland Championship

North Otago ..... 17
Kelepi Funaki, Levi Emery, Alipate Tuipolotu tries; Abel Magalogo con

Halftime: Horowhenua-Kapiti 15-5.

It is just a pity the good was outweighed by the bad.

North Otago's defence was again erratic, but the major reason for the loss was the jaw-dropping number of mistakes and turnovers.

Time and again, the Old Golds would see a promising attacking move break down thanks to an error or mis-step that handed the ball over.

It meant they had very little opportunity to get up a head of steam and, apart from the first few minutes and a lovely spell just after halftime, they were on the back foot.

Funaki scored the opening try from a pick and go but the rest of the first half belonged to Horowhenua-Kapiti.

Out of my way... North Otago centre Hayden Todd has prop Kelepi Funaki in support as he looks to fend Horowhenua-Kapiti halfback Jack Tatu-Robertson during the Heartland Championship rugby game in Levin on Saturday. PHOTO: DARRYL BUTLER

Playing with the wind, and with sevens star Andrew Knewstubb looking dangerous and No 8 Benedict Grant running riot, the home team led 15-5 at the break.

Things picked up markedly for North Otago when Emery showed nice balance to score in the corner and replacement Alipate Tuipolotu made it 17-15.

But Horowhenua-Kapiti showed greater patience as the second half continued, and scored 10 quick points in the final quarter to seal the win.

The Old Golds will have to get back on their feet quickly as they face unbeaten Mid Canterbury in Ashburton this weekend.

Mid Canterbury ground out a 24-17 win over Whanganui at home on Saturday.

South Canterbury continued its strong start with a 61-17 thumping of Wairarapa-Bush in Timaru, Thames Valley made it two from two with a 35-19 win over East Coast in Ruatoria, Poverty Bay smashed Buller 76-14 in Gisborne, and West Coast beat King Country 34-17 in Taupo.

Another late loss for Southland Grumpy Rennie wants perfection

ADRIAN SECONI

STAGS fans know the story well by now.

Southland battled its way to another heartbreaking defeat in Invercargill on Saturday.

This time, it was Canterbury grabbing a 19-16 win in extra time.

Last month, it was Otago squeaking to victory.

The protagonists have changed week by week during the last few years but the plot is a re-run.

Valiant but vanquished. It must get tiresome.

Marty Banks could have sealed the win for Southland with a last-minute penalty. But he pushed it wide and the game went to extra time.

Southland ..... 16

Halftime: Southland 10-9.

Burke knocked over a penalty from in front in the 85th minute to clinch it.

Southland had led 10-9 at the break.

Fullback Josh Moorby ran a good line and went in untouched after 15 minutes. The devil was in the detail there — a couple of dummy runners had helped set up the deception.

Burke had nudged over three penalties and his side took the lead when Luke Roman burrowed over midway through the second spell.

The Stags were down a player after prop Chris Apoua got a yellow card when he led with the shoulder off the ball.

Banks drilled a couple of penalties to get Southland back on a level footing with just under 10 minutes remaining.

But there was a late sting waiting for the Stags... again.

In the other game on Saturday, All Blacks halfback Aaron Smith helped Manawatu to a 31-19 win over Northland in Palmerston North.

He has skipped the All Blacks' trip to Australia due to family reasons and was instrumental in the win.

Yesterday, Hawkes' Bay beat Wellington 31-28, and Taranaki walloped Bay of Plenty 55-28.

BRISBANE: The Wallabies are riding a four-year high but that will not stop coach Dave Rennie getting grumpy as he sinks his teeth further into the rebuilding team.

A 27-8 defeat of a plucky Argentina in Townsville on Saturday night ensured Australia avoided any banana peel moments for a third straight Rugby Championship win.

But some sloppy moments clearly frustrated Rennie, who admitted to some nervous moments when the Pumas mounted a second-half challenge.

"We're always looking for perfection aren't we," he said.

"It'll be pretty clear to the boys; we're happy to win no doubt but against good sides like Argentina you've got to put them out to the contest when you get the chance.

"They dominated the third 20 minutes and if they scored again it was going to be an arm wrestle."

"But it gives us a chance to be grumpy through the review after a win."

Samu Kerevi continued his fine form since rejoining the squad, making 90m on 14 carries with six tackle breaks, three line breaks and a try.

His powerful running game gave measured No 10 Quade Cooper a constant option and left Argentina coach Mario Ledesma, a former Wallabies coaching assistant, in admiration.

"I think he's more mature and maybe fitter from what I remember," Ledesma said of Japan-based Kerevi, who has credited his improved physique to his participation in Australia's sevens campaign at the Tokyo Olympics.

Not since winning four consecutive matches in 2017 — part of a seven-game unbeaten streak that included two draws against South Africa — have the Wallabies enjoyed such a prolonged period of success. — AAP

Hooker back on track after unanimous points win

CHRISTOPHER REIVE

WELLINGTON: New Zealand lightweight Dan Hooker scored a three-round unanimous points-decision win over rising unranked German prospect Nasrat Haqparast at UFC 266 in Las Vegas yesterday.

Ranked eighth in the star-studded lightweight division, but coming off back-to-back losses, the 31-year-old was looking to reignite his run to the top against Haqparast.

The German fighter of Afghan descent had faced his own obstacles obtaining a US work visa before the fight and was also dealing with the recent death of his mother.

The scores were 30-27, 30-27 and 30-26 for Hooker, who ups his record to 21-10 while Haqparast falls to 13-4.

Hooker set the pace immediately and he kept it where he wanted throughout a first round that he led behind a measured attack on the feet.

The New Zealander continued to fight effectively in the second, this time at close range, where he mixed things up, grappling well and landing some hard knees. Hooker added a takedown to his scoring column, punctuating the end of the round with ground strikes.

Hooker put the fight back on the mat early in the third round and kept it there until Haqparast got back to his feet — albeit briefly — with a little over a minute to go. But Hooker continued to show off his wrestling game, keeping his foe grounded until the final horn. — RNZ

Absenteeism, staff shortages an issue

CARMEN HALL

AUCKLAND: Workplace absenteeism combined with the labour shortage is creating headaches for employers and "stressed out" and "overworked" staff.

The news comes as thousands of retail and hospitality jobs around the country remain unfilled.

Industries in the primary sector were also fearing the future because it was often hard to get people for seasonal work.

The kiwifruit industry completed its latest harvest despite failing to fill 3600 Bay of Plenty seasonal jobs and grappling with significant absenteeism issues.

Restaurant Association of New Zealand chief executive Marisa Bidois said the industry needed 10,000 more workers over the next five years.

She said absenteeism was something all businesses grappled with.

"There are all kinds of reasons why a staff member may need to take leave, from feeling unwell through to mental health issues or caring for family members. In our experience, hospitality teams are like families in themselves and most employees won't want to let their colleagues down."

But being a team member down did put a lot of pressure on the rest of the crew.

"If service is slowed down as a result of being short-staffed, this can force businesses to lose revenue."

Missing a few days of work was expected from time to time.

"When it becomes regular and ongoing that creates problems in the workplace. Great training is key. We need people motivated and fit to work but we also need to look to ourselves, as an industry, to ensure that we are investing sufficient time into our workforce."

Retail NZ chief executive Greg Harford said the sector was relatively buoyant, but the labour market was tight and the cost of doing business was escalating rapidly.

There was a shortage of quality candidates for roles right across the sector now numbering in the thousands.

Tauranga Chamber of Commerce chief executive Matt Cowley said business owners were stressed and frustrated.

"Business leaders are forced to either pick up the slack themselves or reduce their output so they don't burn out their staff. It's a tough decision to turn business down."

Absenteeism was difficult in shift work, particularly in the service sector.

"I've heard various examples from hospitality businesses that they have increased the pay rates to employ more Kiwis as dishwashers, but quite often they don't turn up for their shift. Others in the kitchen need to pick up the work, which slows down their service times."

For lower-skilled workers access to transport, particularly as buses were not always available, could also be a factor.

Meanwhile, for skilled workers, having a bad team culture, staff burnout and feelings of under-appreciation could play a role.

"It really depends on the individual circumstances. Generally speaking, it's getting to know your employees better, including understanding what's happening in their personal lives that is impacting their attendance at work. It could be financial, medical or that they have dependants relying on them."

Rotorua Chamber of Commerce chief executive Bryce Heard said it had not had any noticeable increase in concerns about absenteeism, but there was quite a bit of feedback about the inability to get skilled employees.

"This and the inability to get skilled immigrants into NZ — we have had some reports of stressed and overworked core staff and owners unable to fill roles from the people available within."

New Zealand Kiwifruit Growers Inc chief executive Colin Bond said it was aware absenteeism had been a significant issue in the kiwifruit industry during the 2021 harvest, and it was "disappointing".

This noticeable absenteeism came on the back of the kiwifruit industry offering significantly higher wages this season, he said.

"Absenteeism affects industry productivity and can ultimately impact on the economic returns to the kiwifruit regions across New Zealand. More than 80% comes from the Bay of Plenty."

At the peak of the harvest this season, the Bay of Plenty was short of at least 3600 seasonal workers. — The New Zealand Herald

Former Cavalier CEO given $508K termination payment

JAMIE GRAY

CHRISTCHURCH: Paul Alston, the former chief executive of Cavalier Corporation (now Bremworth), received a half-a-million-dollar termination payment upon his departure from the carpet maker, the company's annual report shows.

The report said Mr Alston received a $508,560 payment which, on top of his salary of $508,559 and other benefits, took the total remuneration to $1.22 million for the June year.

Mr Alston joined Cavalier as chief financial officer in 2012 and has served as the chief executive since May 2015. Bremworth announced his resignation in April this year.

He oversaw the turnaround and restructure of the business, as well as the development of its new, all-wool and natural fibres strategy.

He was credited with leading the company through a period of change and positioning it for the future.

Current chief executive Greg Smith took up the role in July, having previously been chief executive of Icebreaker and a senior executive with Michael Hill Jeweller.

The company, which concluded the sale and leaseback of its Auckland property for a net $25m last December, said its operating cashflows for the June year came to $16.2m, up from $6.8m in the prior year.

Bremworth reported a $1.7m net profit after tax, up from a $21.5m loss in 2020.

"Normalised profit" excluding one-off items such as a $2.6m net gain on the sale of the Auckland property was $376,000.

At balance date, the company had no debt and $22.5m in the bank. The company's shares last traded at 75c. — The New Zealand Herald

Scaffolding has gone up around the A&T Burt building, on the corner of Stuart and Cumberland Sts, in Dunedin. The building is undergoing a significant redevelopment to house law firm Webb Farry and another business. When contacted, Webb Farry partner Megan Barlett declined to say what the other business was. She said the development was a fantastic opportunity to protect the building's heritage. Its three floors were being refitted. Work is expected to be finished by the end of the year.

IT'S school holiday time — "juggle time" for working parents.

It is challenging enough for those of us living in Level 2 regions, but spare a thought for those in locked-down Auckland.

Distracted and stressed parents do not perform at their best in the workplace, particularly if they are suffering from "parental burnout".

Parenting involves visible and invisible tasks

To be honest, every day is a juggle for working parents. In term time there is possibly more to do — extra-curriculars, appointments, errands.

Such visible tasks are only a portion of the working parent gig. The rest is in the mental, logistical and emotional labour of running a family and a household. Mothers often keep a running dialogue in their head:

"Do I need to get the drier fixed or can I rely on the spring weather? Did we get more eggs? Is she having too much sugar in her lunch? Has his sports uniform been washed? Is it too damp to mow the lawn? Does the recycling go out tomorrow? Have I paid the car rego? When do I need to take Mum to the doctor? The cat to the vet? Can I make time to coach that team/be on that committee?" and so on.

This side of parenting is a four-

Parental burnout can be reflected in the workplace

part process. It starts with anticipating household needs, identifying options for fulfilling those needs, deciding which options to choose and checking back to make sure what's been decided gets implemented. It is difficult to stop as it feels like you are "on loop".

Parenting is for life

Each age and stage has its own challenges.

Pre-schoolers are more physically demanding but often early childhood care facilities operate over a full work day.

Schools in New Zealand commonly finish at 3pm — what do you do with the kids afterwards? Teenagers can get around by themselves but parents don't always know where they are or who they are with.

Sons and daughters are now living at home longer, due to increased living costs. Grandparents are being expected to provide more child care.

It's hard for parents as it is not a job you can quit. It's especially hard for single parents and families living away from extended whānau. This separation has been exacerbated by Covid travel restrictions.

Connections

KATE HESSON

Founder of The Burnout Project and author of Burnout Your First Ten Steps, Dr Amy Imms, adds that "parents of children with special needs, parents with past or current mental illness, parents with perfectionist tendencies... are [also] at particular risk".

Parental burnout is real. The term "burnout" is usually associated with high-flying careers — people who work long, long hours and sacrifice their life for career success.

However, parental burnout was first identified in the early 1980s. It has been described as "an exhaustion syndrome, characterised by feeling physically and mentally overwhelmed by their role as a parent" by researchers Isabelle Roskam and Moira Mikolajczak.

So it is important for parents and their employers to put strategies in place to deal with the signs before total burnout sets in.

Research has shown that working parents are often the most efficient employees at work — the old adage "if you want something done give it to a busy person" rings true. However, there will always be more things to do than time to do them.

When our employees get stuck in a reactive cycle of worrying about ticking things off, they can get more overwhelmed, even as things get ticked off the list.

Preventing burnout

Parents need to monitor their own expectations of what they are trying to achieve at home.

Guilt is something we put upon ourselves. Be realistic about what we can achieve, relax our standards and give ourselves permission to ask for help. Here, another adage rings true: "it takes a village to raise a child".

It is our responsibility to put support and contingency mechanisms in place which will help, but don't forget your invisible list. It is one thing to ask someone to cook dinner, but who has shopped for the food and planned the menu?

As working parents we tell ourselves we are role modelling independence and a hard work ethic to our kids. But we need to reinforce this by giving them responsibilities at home, too.

Sometimes we try to lessen our guilt by buying them things, but spending quality time with them is more valuable.

To do this, we need to monitor what is expected of us at work. Are the hours and extra responsibilities being asked of us reasonable? We need to consider our boundaries and discuss them with our employers and team members.

That is all very easy to say, but can it be done? To avoid burn out, parents need to work in environments that enable these boundaries to be put in place and supported on an ongoing basis.

This applies to all levels of an organisation, leaders too.

Obviously, employers do not control what goes on in their employees' homes. But they can control how their work environment affects the stress levels of working parents. Here are a few ideas for employers to address parental burnout:

■ Visibly show gratitude: Parenting is often a thankless task so being visibly valued by your employer can help parents to keep feeling positive. Perhaps offer to pay for child care or home help as form of bonus. Subscriptions to services like Hello Fresh are another option.

■ Know what it looks like: Symptoms include extreme frustration, constant exhaustion, difficulty handling tasks, foggy brains and anxiety. Warning signs of burnout often creep up slowly and what stresses out one parent will not worry another parent as much. Some parents will be overly stressed because they have difficult children or children with learning difficulties. Others have very easy children but are very stressed because they set high expectations.

■ Raise awareness: Many working parents at your organisation might not know about parental burnout. Help educate employees by adding it as a topic in your workplace wellness programme. It is a recognised condition so going to see a GP or a counsellor may be appropriate.

■ Enable flexibility: This helps working parents to achieve a positive work-life balance and is one of the top perks employees seek in an employer. Plan to keep meetings short and at times that suit the whole team, including part-timers. Put "do-not-disturb" blocks on emails that apply outside normal working hours.

■ Establish an accepting culture: Working parents need to feel supported by their employer. Encourage open communication among your team.

Let them know that they will not be judged for trying to keep up with family responsibilities. As many leaders are working parents themselves, it is a good opportunity to connect with employees on the same level.

Parents, if you find yourself not being able to find any moments of joy in parenting and you are emotionally distancing from your kids, you might be heading towards parental burnout.

Mark your boundaries openly to your children, say "I need a break" and practise some self-care: a game of golf, a long bath, some adult-only socialising. It's OK to not be able to "do it all".

Employers, with a little empathy and flexibility, you can help alleviate the stress felt by working parents and improve their wellbeing. This will in turn foster a happier, more engaged and productive work environment.

Pitman achieves special mark; next target 2000

WELLINGTON: A comfortable victory by Miss Tycoon Rose at Riccarton on Saturday provided co-trainer Michael Pitman with more than the usual satisfaction of a job well done.

Pitman, who trains in partnership with son Matthew, has now moved into second place among New Zealand trainers by domestic wins, with 1878 victories to his name, second only to Graeme Rogerson, who has trained more than 2500, and one ahead of Dave O'Sullivan.

It is an achievement of which Pitman is mightily proud but one that might never have occurred without the determination and resilience he has displayed throughout his more than 40 years in the industry.

"This really means a lot to me, especially given the circumstances of how I got started and the flak I copped in the early years from people who told me I probably got my trainer's licence from a Weet-Bix packet."

Michael Pitman

Pitman caught the bug for thoroughbreds in his early 20s, when working for Olympic shooting bronze medallist Ian Ballinger.

A sports-mad teenager, who had spent several years caddying for Stuart Jones, one of New Zealand's foremost amateur golfers, Pitman had just changed jobs and was managing Ballinger's rifle shop when he got the opportunity to race a horse with Ballinger from the Ray Harris stable.

"When I was at Ian's we got involved with a mare called Parilla and she provided me with my first win as an owner. "I was hooked then and there and decided I would like to get into training along with my wife, Diane, who I had just met."

Pitman applied for his public licence, which was granted, but before he had a chance to secure his first winner, tragedy struck as he was pinned against a concrete wall by his car and eventually had his left leg amputated below the knee.

"I hadn't even trained a winner and I was in hospital for 26 weeks after the accident," Pitman said.

"Diane looked after the team at the time and when I left hospital, I had $17 in the bank, so I started from pretty much nothing."

"I remember the doctor said to me to enjoy whatever I did as I would be in a wheelchair by the time I was 50."

"Well, I'm 66 now and that isn't looking likely, but I can tell him I've had plenty of enjoyment in my life."

While he may be approaching a well-earned retirement, Pitman is adamant there is one more goal he wants to achieve before he hands over the family business to Matthew.

"This has always been a family business with Diane, who has been the mainstay, Matthew and my late son Jonny," he said.

"When I retire it will still be that way and I'm sure Matthew is probably itching for that to happen."

"I've told him that the minute I get to 2000 winners I will give it away at the end of that season, so we may only be a couple of years away. — NZ Racing Desk

Tasman in control right from start

HAYDEN MEIKLE

EIGHTY-SIX seconds.

It is not often a rugby game is effectively over that quickly, but that was (sort of) the case for Southland yesterday.

The Stags knew they were in for a long day as soon as block-busting Tasman winger Timoci Tavatavanawai flew over for the opening try from a simple scrum move in the national championship game in Blenheim yesterday.

Tasman rattled on three more unanswered tries in the opening quarter on its way to a 51-14 win that exposed the gulf between the two teams.

Southland looked worryingly aimless for much of the first half, and while it was much more competitive in the second half, that might have been because Tasman understandably took its foot off the throttle.

The Stags had a reasonable amount of possession but could do very little with it.

They took some awful options, in the first half especially, and clean missed too many tackles.

When the Mako had the ball, they were often able to score quickly as Southland struggled to cope with the home side's attacking potency.

Midfield backs Levi Aumua and Leicester Fainga'anuku ran amok, halfback Jack Grooby probed and darted around the field, and young No8 Anton Segner was in sparkling form until he left with an injury.

One Tasman try in the first half was sensational; another, at least for the Stags, was just a little embarrassing.

Mitch Hunt popped up a cross-kick in the 11th minute and winger Macca Springer lived up to his name by soaring high to gather, cut inside the final tackler and dot down.

Shortly before halftime, veteran Southland hooker Greg Pleasants-Tate capped a forgettable day out when he was stripped cold by Aumua, who then barrelled over for a try.

There was at least one high point for the Stags in the first half when journeyman first five Marty Banks swooped for a 55m intercept try.

They also started the second half well when winger Solomon Alaimalo looped around the Mako defence for a nice try, and held their own for most of the rest of the half.

Loose forward Tony Lamborn was, as usual, committed and strong, and halfback Lisato Miloharris had some good moments, but too many Southland players looked like they were running on Invercargill time.

Southland is at home to Manawatu this Sunday.

In other NPC games at the weekend, Bay of Plenty stole a dramatic 33-32 win over Wellington, and Northland upset Waikato 38-28 in Rene Ranger's 100th game.

CYCLING

PARIS: Britain's Lizzie Deignan rode to a landmark victory in the inaugural Paris Roubaix Femmes as rain, mud and crashes made it a memorable debut for the world's best female riders over the infamous cobbled course yesterday.

The former world champion produced a dominant ride over the 115.6km course and held off a powerful late surge by Dutch great Marianne Vos to win by

Deignan makes history on greasy cobbles

Imin 17sec.

"I feel incredibly proud," Deignan, who adds the maiden Paris Roubaix to her other notable triumphs including last year's Liege-Bastogne-Liege, said.

"Women's cycling is at this turning point, and today is part of history."

"It proves the appetite for women's cycling and that the riders can do one of the hardest races in the world."

"Today I was the third rider [in the team] and I had to be in the front at the first cobbled section to protect my leaders."

"But then I saw there was a gap so I just kept going."

After three circuits around Denain, Trek Segafredo rider

Deignan established a small lead over the pack just before the first of 17 cobbled sections with more than 80km remaining.

With riders struggling to organise a concerted chase, many of them slithering over on the greasy cobbles, former world champion Deignan powered into a commanding lead.

With 30km remaining, Deignan held a lead of 2min 30sec.

Handling the bone-shaking cobblestones with aplomb, she maintained her advantage as several fancied riders crashed heavily.

Vos finally put the hammer down to try to catch Deignan, slicing into the lead as she powered through the Carrefour de L'Arbre cobbled section.

Vos closed the gap to 1min 18sec as Deignan began the final 10km, but Deignan proved unshakeable out front as the famed Roubaix velodrome finish approached.

Deignan was so far ahead that the finale inside the Roubaix velodrome resembled a lap of honour as the Yorkshire rider wrote her name into the cycling history books. — Reuters

PUBLIC NOTICE

Proposed Otago Regional Policy Statement

- On 26 June 2021, the Otago Regional Council (ORC) publicly notified the proposed Otago Regional Policy Statement 2021 (ORPS).
- In that public notice, ORC stated that it was satisfied that the whole of the ORPS 2021 is a freshwater planning instrument and therefore would be subject to the freshwater planning process set out in s 80A of the Resource Management Act 1991 (RMA).
- Questions have been raised whether the ORPS is a freshwater planning instrument in terms of s 80A of the RMA.
- ORC has brought proceedings in the High Court at Dunedin under the Declaratory Judgments Act 1908 to determine that issue.
- The Court file number is CIV-2021-412-89.
- The High Court has directed the public notice of the proceedings be given.
- You can view the statement of claim, notice of proceeding, the Court's directions and affidavit of Anita Jayne Dawe in support on the ORC website www.orc.govt.nz/rps.
- Hard copies of the statement of claim, notice of proceeding, supporting affidavit and Court directions can be obtained on request by emailing rps@orc.govt.nz.
- The Court has directed that this notice is to be published on two occasions in the Otago Daily Times.
- The second publication of this notice is on 4 October 2021.
- If you have not been personally served with the statement of claim and you wish to participate in this proceeding you must file in Court and serve on the ORC at the address given at the foot of this notice a statement of defence or notice of appearance and any affidavit on which you wish to rely, on or before 18 October 2021 (that is ten working days after the second publication of this notice) or obtain the leave of the Court to do so later.
- You must also serve those documents on any other person who has filed in the Court an address for service.
- If a hearing of the proceeding is necessary, it will be held in this Court at Dunedin on 8 and 9 February 2022.
- Documents for service on ORC in relation to this matter may be —
  - posted to its solicitor at Savoy Building, 50 Princes Street, Dunedin;
  - posted to its solicitor at PO Box 1144; or
  - left for the solicitor at a document exchange for direction to DX YP80015;
  - transmitted to the solicitor by facsimile to (03) 477 6998; or
  - emailed to the solicitor at alistair.logan@rossdowling.co.nz.
